Component 3: Activity 1 - Ideas

The concept and style of performance will this be a performance of the development of women rights throughout time with a Brechtian style which encourages the audience to think about what is happening in the performance.

I will be the sound designer and the target audience for this will be everyone as this performance will go through out the decades this performance will target diverse audience as its about how women right progressed throughout different eras and this will present different on how women rights get to the point it is now.

movement and speech the resources that are needed for this performance is songs and there is a poem that is involved it is already a recording of a poem.

Are work has been influenced by, Brechtian Epic theatre with simplistic set and costume, teaching the audience a message and using episodic structure to explore lots of different viewpoints. They use dance and break the fourth wall. My role within the group will be to play music and background sounds and effect.
